

Susan Wolf, Edna J. Koury Professor of Philosophy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, lectured at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies on May 7, 2010. Wolf, who works chiefly in ethics and its close relations in philosophy of mind, philosophy of action, political philosophy, and aesthetics, spoke about "Blame, Italian Style."

After her lecture, Susan Wolf continued discussion with faculty members and graduate students. Susan Wolf, Edna J. Koury Professor of Philosophy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, delivered a lecture titled, "Blame, Italian Style," on May 7, 2010 at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies.

Faculty and students gathered in the atrium of the Mershon Center at a reception for Susan Wolf, Edna J. Koury Professor of Philosophy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Wolf lectured at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies on May 7, 2010 about “Blame, Italian Style.”

Susan Wolf, Edna J. Koury Professor of Philosophy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, stood with Allan Silverman, Professor of Philosophy at The Ohio State University, following the lecture she delivered titled “Blame, Italian Style.” Silverman organized the visit by Wolf to the Mershon Center for International Security Studies on May 7, 2010.